CINCINNATI GOOD WILL PARTY GET ROYAL WELCOME HERE DURING HOURS' VISIT TODAY

Reception Committee Meets Visitors at Train, March With Band Through Street to Square Where Short Program Given

LOCAL AND CINCINNATI MEN MAKE SPEECHES

Cincinnati business men and local citizens mingled in a spirit of good will and enthusiasm during the one hour visit of the Good Will party here from 12:40 to 1:49 this afternoon. Middlesboro turned out en masse to the meeting which was held at the corner of Twentieth street and Cumberland avenue in the middle of the street. The visitors declared it was the most cordial reception they had received during the entire trip.

A reception committee composed of A. P. Liebig, Russ Hill, Hugh Allen, C. A. Blackburn and a number of other prominent men met the delegation which arrived promptly in the ten-coach excursion train. With outstretched hands and smiling faces the men stepped from the train and were cordially welcomed by local citizens.

The large band which accompanies the delegation was hastily formed in marching order and led the parade. It was followed by the Girl Scouts and the Boy Scouts. The Cincinnatians followed behind. Many of them were loaded with souvenirs which they freely gave out on all sides.

The procession stopped at the public meeting place and the nucleus of the crowd formed at the center of the intersecting streets. Mayor J. H. Keeney made a brief but eloquent address in which he cordially welcomed the visitors to our city, telling them that everything we have, "even the ozone in the air" was theirs.

He was followed by T. Russ Hill who addressed the gathering. He spoke particularly of our efforts to obtain a national memorial park here. "You see the Pinnacle yonder on whose rugged summit we would establish a memorial to Lincoln the Great Emancipator. We ask you men to use your influence you may in helping up in this project.

"We may not know as much here as people do in the outside world but some of the purest Anglo-Saxon blood in the entire country is right here in Middlesboro." His speech was well received by both visitors and local citizens.

H. P. Plogstedt, trip commander, acted as chairman of the meeting. After a brief speech he introduced W. C. Culkins, vice president of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Culkins was unstinted in eulogizing the town, its citizens and its ideals. "The national park project appeals to all of us," he said, "and we are also greatly interested in it. God proved that he believed in outdoor advertising when he created the beautiful scenery here. Men used to go west for scenery until they discovered that we have it right here in these mountains.

"We business men of Cincinnati are well acquainted with Middlesboro," he continued, "there are many representatives of the mining interests of this section in Cincinnati. You have a fine city here and your hotel is unexcelled. Travelling men are forever dinning in our ears the superiority of your hotel. And now I wish to bring a message from the Kiwanis club of Cincinnati to Middlesboro Kiwanians. They extend to you a cordial welcome and invite you to join them at their meetings any time you are in Cincinnati."

Horace Williamson, poet humorist, made a very clever speech in poetry. A part of it was entirely extemporaneous as he made it on local topics, and his subject matter being taken from little incidents in the crowd around him.

Warren Sayers announced a Fall Festival to be held in Cincinnati during the last week in August and the first week of September. He invited all Middlesboro to attend, saying there would be a special train for the event.

After the speaking program was finished, the entire gathering sang "My Country, 'Tis 'of Thee," acompanied by the visiting band. Next they sang "My Old Kentucky Home," while J. W. Holman, representing the Romell Motion Picture company, photographed the crowd with his motion picture camera. It was announced that the pictures will be shown at the local theater next Wednesday.

The Girl Scouts sang one song. The band played several patriotic and popular songs. The visitors, each of which wore a large badge bearing his name and his business connection walked among the crowd and became acquainted with local citizens.

Tony, the monkey mascot of the party at once became a favorite, especially the children. It was carried by W. E. McCarty.

During the meeting it was announced that a draft for $100 for the Community Chest would be donated by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

At 1:35 the procession was again formed and the visitors marched to the train. At 1:40 they left Middlesboro, leaving behind them a spirit of good will and taking with them a higher appreciation of Middlesboro and its citizens.

SEEK SLAYER OF MEMPHIS CHAIN STORE MANAGER

Assailant of Man and Girl Companion Believed Same Who Killed Duncan Walker of Mayfield in January

ONE NEGRO ARRESTED, ANOTHER MAN SUSPECTED

By Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, May 25.—Two trails are being followed by police here today in search for the slayer of W. O. Spencer, chain grocery manager, who also wounded Miss Lura Johnson, school teacher, as they were driving on a country road near Memphis Wednesday. Detectives said they had two suspects in mind and believed the assailant the same man who shot to death Duncan Walker of Mayfield, Ky., near here last January. Miss Johnson was wounded in the neck by a highwayman whom she described as a tall negro. One negro has been arrested but no announcement as to information has been obtained.

Children in Busses Today

Two big busses of Andy Moyers were used to haul about fifty or sixty children around over town after the parade this morning. They were taken to a number of places, singing songs and in general having a big time.

26TH LOUISVILLE AUTO FATALITY

Death of Little Boy Last Night Brings List for 1923 Five Ahead 21 Killed in 1922

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, May 25.—The death last night of Albert Hannan, six years old, is the twenty-sixth automobile fatality in Louisville since January 1. The same date last year twenty-one persons had been killed by the same cause in the city. Only two persons are indicted in connection with these deaths this year and their cases are pending.

NOTICEABLE DECREASE IN NUMBER ARRESTS THIS WEEK

A noticeable decrease in the number of arrests have been noticed this week. This improvement has been brought about by the liquor raids made here last Saturday, according to Chief H. E. Ball. Less than half the usual number of arrests have been made.

It is thought by the police that main sources of the liquor supply have been cut off and as practically all the small offenses as well as many of the greater ones are due directly or indirectly to liquor, lawlessness virtually ceases with efficient curbing of the liquor traffic. Things have been singularly quiet along Nineteenth street and Ashbury avenue, places which have hitherto furnished a large part of the liquor, this week.

She was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and granted probation. She testified Iccolano spent all her money, said he was going to leave her and threatened her life.

COLLECTOR KEARNS SAYS NOT HALF CITY LICENSES PAID

Not half of the city license fees which aggregate from $10,000 to $15,000 have paid, according to Frank Kearns, city collector. Business licenses of all kinds, professional license and city automobile licenses are included.

Delinquents have had several public notices to the effect that annual city license fees are due and payable but the warning is not heeded by more than half of those subject to such payments. The city has the right to take drastic measures to enforce payment but thus far it has been very lenient.

EXPLORE MOUND BUILDERS' FORT

Old Fort Relic of Prehistoric Times Buried Under Four Feet of Earth and Rocks

By Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 24—Exploration and mapping of remarkable fort in Kentucky constructed by the Mound Builders several thousand years ago, is being carried on by Prof. Wilbur Greenly Burroughs, assistant geologist of the Kentucky Geological Survey. This is the first detailed investigation and survey that has ever been made of this prehistoric work, large portions of which have been brought to light for the first time. Dr. Willard Rouse Jillson, state geologist said today.

This fort, known as Indian Fort is located three and one half miles southeast of Berea. Prof. Burroughs exploration shows that it covers 250 acres on the flat top of a knob, 620 feet vertically above the surrounding valleys. Stone walls, usualy consisting of limestone and conglomerate rocks loosely piled together, guard each of 13 possible approaches to the summit. Cliffs 100 to 180 feet high, protect the other side of the fort.

The stones vary in length fro eight feet across a narrow trail to 1200 feet along the edge of a twenty-five foot cliff which could have been scaled with the aid of the primitive ladders of prehistoric times. In places vulnerable to attack the walls are built of flat, evenly laid rocks forming a perpendicular rampart. This method of construction is said to be rare and shows that the mound builders had advanced intellectually farther than some archaeologists have heretofore believed according to Prof. Burroughs.

Even the cracks in the cliffs only large enough for one man to enter at a time, if accessible from below, are barricaded with regularly laid stone walls. Piles of ammunition still lie at intervals behind the walls where the defenders of the fort had placed them far back in the dawn of history.

Prof. Burroughs and voluntary assistants from the geology student of Berea College have been excavating in the rockhouse and caves of the Indian Fort during the past seven months for the remains of the prehistoric inhabitants. In several rockhouses they have discovered splinters possibly of human bone, together with stone axes, arrow heads, flint knives, scrapers, pipes, charcoal, pieces of pottery, etc.

These remains were buried beneath four feet of earth and rocks with the mound builders had piled upon them. Excavating is still being carried on and there is every reason to believe that additional information will be obtained, according to Mr. Jillson.

$15,000 ALREADY SUBSCRIBED TO COMMUNITY CHEST FUND, REST OF QUOTA IN SIGHT AT 3 P. M.

Parade of School Children and Other Organizations This Morning One of Day's Biggest Features—Solicitors Busy All Day

MEETING TONIGHT TO CHECK UP ALL CARDS STILL OUT

Fifteen thousand dollars in signed checks had been subscribed to the Community Chest fund at 3 o'clock this afternoon and Major E. S. Helburn, chairman of the campaign, gave assurance that the rest of the $17,000 budget was in sight. The tannery district had not been heard from at all and a number of individual cards are still out. These will all be checked up tonight when it is expected the drive will go over in fine shape.

The general response to the campaign was exceptionally well. A large number of the solicitors made their appearance and began their canvass on time. The public solicited, met them, for the most part, in good spirit. There were, of course, some disagreeable cases of persons of good means who refused to subscribe to the fund at all, or only a small percentage of the amount assessed them. These cases were, however, in the minority.

A huge thermometer stood at the Weinstein building, right under Community Chest headquarters in Major Helburn's office, and the money was recorded in thousands as it was raised. At noon, the time of the Cincinnatians visit, the thermometer stood at $12,000, with more coming in at all times, keeping up the general excitement.

The enthusiasm with which the four captains, J. W. Bradner, F. P. Scales, A. P. Liebig and L. D. Hill, worked had a great deal to do with the success of the campaign. Each one had a different method of procedure. Mr. Bradner put five women on his team to insure success in his district. L. D. Hill divided his workers into squads with lieutenants and second lieutenants. Most of the solicitors went in pairs.

Parade Spectacular Array

The parade was one of the most gorgeous public spectacles that the town has witnessed for some time. Hundreds of school boys and girls ranging from the lowest grades to high school seniors formed the main part of the street event. The drizzling rain did not dampen the spirits of the youngsters who were doing their bit in the campaign nor keep away the multitudes of spectators that crowded the sidewalks for several blocks. Frequent outbursts of applause from the onlookers were evidence that the parade made a tremendous hit.

The parade which was delayed a little on account of threatening rain began shortly after 9 o'clock. The band playing a stirring piece led the procession. Boy Scouts, resplendent in their uniforms and marching with military precision, followed. Girl Scouts also in their parade uniforms, came next. American and state flags were held high and flung to the breeze by the robust young Americans.

The Red Cross display formed the greater part of the parade. This was led by Miss Wilhelmine Marx who was surrounded by a score or more of little girls dressed in white unifroms with regulation headdress. A net-work of ribbons extending from Miss Marx to each of the children symbolized in a very able manner the tie that binds the great organization to these little ones.

Following this, were other pupils of the grades, the girls being dressed in white wearing the Red Cross symbol and the boys in overall uniforms. Beginning with the lower grades, the line became composed of larger children ending with the seniors. Each group was accompanied by its teacher.

Throughout the entire length of the line banners emphasizing the importance of the work were carried by the children.

A coupe entirely covered with white and decorated with the familiar red crosses, was one of the features of the parade. A number of larger girls with red and white streamers running from one to another and carrying aloft the American flag came near the rear of the line.

Athletics Are Represented

The appeal for athletics was brought out in a very able manner by the paraders. A number of the high school athletes dressed in their baseball, football and track uniforms carried banners on which appeared in large letters a plea for athletic privileges which will be made possible through the medium of the Community Chest.

The library was represented in the parade. With the signs, "We Want a Better Library" and "Good Reading Makes Good Citizens" the great public institution was well advertised to the town. A number of small girls carried banners bearing the appeal of the Grace Nettleton Home.

The Salvation Army was last but not least in the procession. A truck decorated with advertising for the cause was filled with local representatives of the noble organization which is the universal friend of the man in need.

On the whole, the public generously cleared the street while the parade was in progress. However, several cars ran along at a good rate of speed splashing mud on the clothing of the girls as it passed.

The entire parade marched up as far as Twenty-second street and then came back the entire length of the business section of Cumberland avenue.

The meeting of all of the workers at the school auditorium last night was to perfect plans of operation. Cards of those to be solicited were given out to the solicitors. Each card bore the man's name and the amount the assessment committee proposed he should pay. The perfection of plans last night made it possible for the solicitors to go to work immediately this morning.

The meeting tonight will serve as a final check up on the results of the campaign and solicitors are urged to bring in all remaining cards so that every thing can be finished up tomorrow.

Visitor Gives $25 to Chest Fund

Jack Zuta, a resident of Chicago, who is visiting in Middlesboro, made a cash contribution of twenty-five dollars to the Community Chest fund.

MRS. FLOWERS, INCURABLY INSANE, TO STATE HOSPITAL

Pronounced incurable insane, Catherine Flowers who is past eighty years old, will be committed to the State Hospital for the Insane at Lexington. An examination of the case was conducted by County Judge J. S. Bingham this afternoon and and the necessary papers for commitment have been filed.

The aged woman has been entirely dependent on her son who is, himself, three score years of age for thirty years. During the past few years she has been suffering from insanity and recently she became violent and uncontrollable.

FISCAL COURT WILL MEET IN PINEVILLE MONDAY

Fiscal court will meet Monday at Pineville, according to County Judge J. S. Bingham who was in Middlesboro this afternoon. It is understood that the bond issue and affairs pertaining to public roads will be discussed and it is not unlikely that the meeting will be one of great interest and importance.

NOTICE TO ALL COMMUNITY CHEST WORKERS

All Community Chest workers, captains, members of teams and committees, are urgently requested to be present at the school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock tonight and to bring in any cards that they may still have. This meeting is urgently necessary in order properly to close up the campaign tomorrow and check up on all soliciting that has been done.

COOPERATION IN THE COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE

Civic ,fraternal and religious and citizens of Middlesboro are due a word of praise for their splendid cooperation in the Community Chest drive which was made today. It is such a rare instance that the public mind, composed as it is of various and divergent tastes, can be focused on a particular purpose with sufficient intensity to carry it to a successful conclusion that the teamwork in the present drive is outstanding.

A cause which has brought together our citizens in a common desire to win surely is of indubitable merit. Men who can lay aside their ordinary interests and not only contribute money but also their valuable time for the sake of others are the real builders of our city.

Without a single dissenting voice, so far as is known, the drive was organized and conducted. So much publicity was given the movement that every person in the city was reached through one or the other mediums of advertising. We had all made up our minds in advance just what amount we wished to subscribe and the pecuniary extraction which is usually a painful operaiton was scarcely felt.

"COFFEE POT" MONEY

The German government is trying another rkind of financial criminality. It is inflating the alleged reserves of the state bank with aluminum. This coinage has been called "coffee pot money."

There is a small amount of gold in the Reichsbank, but only "a drop in the bucket" of the requirement to stabilize the six trillions of paper marks now in circulation. To increase the amount of "coin," which is represented to show a substantial reserve back of the paper, the government some time ago began to issue aluminum coins of which there now is an output of sixteen billions of marks, face value, that is, so stamped. This is more than fourteen times all the gold held by the bank.

Much of it has been added to the bank's fund and is counted as part of the reserve, mark for mark with the gold. When it is recalled that gold is worth near $425 a pound and aluminum scarcely 17 cents a pound, it is not difficult to calculate the extent of the fraud that is being perpetrated. As a circulating medium aluminum coin is not work much more than the paper mark. Included in the bank reserve, it represents a misstatement of the actual worth of that fund of about 2,400 times its value. This estimate is based on metal market quotations and does not allow for the greater number of coins that can be made from the large pound of aluminum compared with what can be got from the small pound of gold.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Do you know Baseball?
by Billy Evans

Questions

ONE—Is ther any imitation as to the weight of the bat that may be used in baseball?

TWO—Is it true that the bat used by Babe Ruth weighs considerably more than that used by any other player?

THREE—When a double header is played, which game is regarded as the regularly scheduled game for that day?

FOUR—When an improper batsman makes a base hit, and the mistake is discovered before another ball is pitched, what happens?

FIVE—If the catcher interferes with the batter when a runner on third is trying to steal home, what is the proper ruling?

ANSWERS

ONE—There is no limitation as to the weight of the bat that a player may use. He may suit his own fancy.

TWO—Ruth used a bat that is considerably heavier than that used by most players. Cobb and Speaker use bats weighing about 37 ounces, while Ruth's bat weighs over 50 ounces.

THREE—The first game is always regarded as the regularly scheduled game with a double header on the boards.

FOUR—The proper batsman is always called out, when an act of an important batsman is discovered in time. The improper batsman is removed from the bases.

FIVE—When a catcher so interferes, the batsman is sent to first and the runner trying to steal home is granted that base regardless of what happens.

LETTER FROM BEATRICE GRIMSHAW TO HER NEWLYWED FRIEND, MRS. LESLIE PRESCOTT

I wonder if you know, dear Leslie, what terrible thing has come to Sally?

Of course you know that Sam had always been a young man that went on periodical sprees. Sally knew this, too, and it was one of the reasons why she did not give up her position.

Poor thing! Just now it is a good thing that she didn't for she is obliged to support both her husband and herself.

Sally thought that, after prohibition, Sam would not be able to get the liquor, but it seems he has been doing so occasionally. A few weeks ago he got hold of something that was poison and in her last letter she told me she thought he had lost his eyesight.

Sally thought she was a little hard because she was resentful of Sam's openly disregarding the laws of his country as well as her respect. You can't blame her very much, can you?

I am in hopes that this terrible thing that has come to her will blow over and Sam will regain his eyesight, and it will be a lesson to him in the future.

In the meantime, of course, poor Sally has to shoulder much of the punishment. It is a strange thing, Leslie dear, that in this world we cannot bear disgrace—and Sam's trouble is more than physical, it is a disgraceful thing—alone. We all must share it with someone who almost always is perfectly innocent.

We must also share it usually with the one we love the most, with the one who is most devoted to us. If we could only think of this when we were playing with fire it would be a great deterrent to many of us who are more or less adventurous.

One can be very happy when one is alone, but no one can ever suffer disgrace without disgracing someone else. I hate to suggest anything to you, my dear Leslie, but I am quite sure Jack, as you say, "never having been married before," has just forgotten that anyone needs money but himself as long as he provides everything else liberally.

Why don't you have a real talk with Jack and explain that to know one is absolutely penniless is a dreadful feeling?

Above all things else, Leslie, don't nag. Just the other day a young woman who had been unfortunate in her marriage made me a rather pathetic confession. She said, "Do you know, if I had known what I do now I would not have made such a wretched failure of my life. I did not take into consideration that my husband and I had been brought up with entirely different standards of living and each of us was striving to make the other conform to his own standard.

"If each of us had taken up our own little measuring stick and planted it in the middle of the way and met there with understanding we probably would have been living together today.

Remember, Leslie dear, that everything in this work is a matter of compromise.

Your friend,
BEATRICE.

ROUTINE

By Berton Braley

By Berton Braley

HOWEVER existence may vary,
However exciting the game,
Two-thirds of our itinerary
Is always exactly the same.
The stay-at-home chap or the rover,
The worker with spade or with pen,
Is constantly doing things over
Then—doing them over again
OUR sleeping, our working, our eating
Conform to a daily routine,
They're things that we can't help repeating
If we would remain on the scene:
The lawyer, the artist, the drover,
All kinds and conditions of men,
Keep doings things over and over,
Then doing them over again.
WE'RE all in a rut and can't change it,
Except in a moderate way,
We live as thefates may arrange it,
And day after day after day,
All over the wold, clear from Dover
To—any place which may ken,
We go on, until it's all over!
Just doing things over again.

SACRED PLACES
(By Jean Hutton)

I know a place where the May apples grow,
And shy little pink Spring Beauties;
With Jack in the Pulpits all in a row,
Preaching to sprig flowers their duties.
I konw a hollow where violets grow,
All sparkling with dew in the morning,
And o'er them the spring winds caressingly blow,
To waft fragrance, like incense, at dawning.
I know a place where a brook runs clear,
And sparkles and sings over pebbles;
A brook that is glad in the spring of the year,
As it wanders through flower-dotted meadows.
I know a place where the wild Crab tree blooms;
Whose pale tinted pink and white flowers
Fills the air with fragrance of heavy perfume,
As in spring winds, petals fall, like spring showers.
And all of these places are sacred to me;
My mother taught me to love them.
Oh long are the years since we wandered so free,
Among the spring flowers with the spring sky above them
And I like to think in God's Kingdom somewhere,
She is living with the flowers of the springtime,
So great was her love for the wild things so fair,
And the glad times we wandered to find them.

Mission Study Class Meets Yesterday

The Mission Study Class of the M. E. Church, South, met at Kentenva hall yesterda yafternoon. Mrs. L. D. Rouser and Mrs. P. M. Parsons were hostesses for the class. Mrs. Joe Biggerstaff gave the lesson, the fourth chapter of "Handicapped Winners." Mrs. W. K. McClure made a prayer. Two hymns were sung and a general discussion of the lesson was held. Refreshments of brick ice cream and cake were served by the hostesses.

Triple Birthday Party Given

A particularly delightful birthday dinner was given by Mrs. L. L. Pumphrey Tuesday night in honor of her father, Lafayette Victor's eighty-eighth birthday, the Rev. W. K. McClure's fiftieth birthday and little Margaret Ann Victor's first birthday. The guests were the McClure Victor and Pumphrey families. At the psychological moment in the dinner the cakes were brought in, one big double white cake decorated in one hundred and thirty-eight pink and blue candles for the two men, and a small white cake in the middle of which was a pink rose bearing one pink candle, for the delighted little Miss Margaret Ann. The honor guests were the recipients of many nice birthday gifts. Lafayette Victor who celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday at this time is one of Middlesboro's first settlers and one of her most respected citizens.

Surprise Shower For Mrs. J. C. Dotson

Mrs. J. H. Woodson entertained with a surprise shower Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ida Scott, honoring Mrs. J. C. Dotson, a recent bride. Many attractive gifts were presented to the guest of honor. An interesting series of events, interspersed with music, made the evening especially enjoyable. A color motif of pink and blue was beautifully developed in pink roses and bluebirds for happiness. An ice course was served by Mrs. Woodson, assisted by Mrs. George Tiller and Mrs. Ida Scott.

Those present were: Mrs. Dotson, Mrs. Harry Watts, Mrs. Gordon Wilson of Pennington, Va.; Mrs. Fred Hurt, of Rodford, Va.; Mrs. Douglas Politte, Mrs. Herbert C. Moore, Mrs. Chester Lewis, Mrs. Harmon Burks, Mrs. Luther Burnett, Mrs. O. O. Stone, Mrs. C. A. Laughner, Mrs. Neal Campbell, Mrs C. O. Brown, Mrs. Walter Hoe, Mrs. Albert Seale, Mrs. George Day, Miss Bertha Pratt, Miss Elise Arnold, Miss Blanch Hurst, Miss Annette Scott, Miss Lelia Buchanan, Miss Verdie Hurst, Miss Loretta Arnold, Miss Elise Woodson, Mrs. H. J. Scott, Mrs George Tiller, Mrs. Ida Scott and Mrs. Woodson.

Large Attendance At Christian Social

About two hundred guests were present at the social given at the Christian church last night in honor of the members recently added to the church. The Girl Scouts rendered a short musical program after their appearance at the Manring theater. About thirty-five persons have united with the church recently and most of these were present. Refreshments were served.

MECHANO STILL REFUSES TO SMILE

Athlete Tries Unsuccessfully to Choke Wizard—Latter Commends Community Chest

Tempted by the offer of $100 for the man who could choke Mechano to death, a man of apparent athletic as well as sporting tendencies, came up on the stage and made a supreme effort to strangle the living doll. After a few attempts, however, he decided the trick was not feasible and gave it up. Mechano then placed one finger on the man's throat, cutting off his wind.

The largest crowd of the week was in attendance at the auto show last night. Most of the visitors weer adults and many of them came from out in the country and from the surrounding towns. All seemed to be highly pleased with assortment of high grade Studebakers and with the inimitable acts of Mechano.

Concentrated efforts were made last night to elicit a smile from Mechano. All kinds of witticisms and stunts were prepared with the hope of winning a Studebaker and other prizes. All failed, however, the wizard successfully wearing his expression of calm seriousness throughout the ordeal.

Miss Eveline Stevens, Mechano's sister, sang a few selections last night which were well received. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet as a tribute to her vocal offering.

In an able address to the audinc, Mchano, highly laudd th Kiwanis Club and othr civic organizations, commended the Community Chest movement and launched an attack against those who patronize mail order houses instead of the Middlesboro merchants. His speech was loudly applauded. Among his acts last night was the "Sailor Boy" number.

COOKING MADE EASY FOR JUNE BRIDES

June, the month of joy for brides and sweet girl graduates, may end in days of gloom and disappointment for the same sweet brides and graduates—if they fail in the important art of preparing dainty wedding breakfasts or luncheons. It is one of the stringent tests friends put on the young housewife, and one for which every girl should prepare herself.

There will be many young housekeepers who will have to do all the planing alone, or with little help. For these, I would suggest a simple menu which can be perfect in its way and yet not too tiring for the one who prepares the food.

For example, the following:

Breakfast

Fresh Pineapple and Strawberries
or
Strawberries
Fresh Salmon Croquettes
with Green Peas
or
Chicken Croquettes with Asparagus
Hot Rolls
Spanish Cream Angel Cakes
Coffee

The pineapple should be cut up into sections, leaving on the skin. Alternate these sections with large, ripe strawberries, having the hulls left on, around a mound of powdered sugar. Some green leaves garnish. With the asparagus, if served, have a Hollandaise sauce, which is made by cooking over water egg yolks and butter with lemon juice, using one-half cup of butter ,two egg yolks and one tablespoon lemon juice.Cook until smooth and thick. Or melted butter, with lemon juice and salt, is just as good, but not so attractive as the thick yellow sauce.

Bridemaids' Luncheon

(Color scheme: Pink and green)
Cream of Pea Soup
Bread Sticks Olives Radishes
Rolled Fillets of Halibut
with Lobster or Shrimp Sauce
Broiled Chicken
Savory Rice Croquettes
Buttered Asparagus
Pistachio Ice Cream
with Crushed Strawberries
Small Cakes Frosted
with Pink Frosting
Coffee (small cup, black)

Another selection for a bridemaid's luncheon may be the following:

Chicken Bouillon (in cups, with a little whipped cream on top)
Assorted Cold Meat
Creamed Potatoes au Gratin
Hot Rolls or Biscuits
Strawberry Ice Cream
Small Cakes Coffee

For the assorted cuts of meat have chicken. The water in which the chicken is cooked will give the bouillon. Strain it through double cheesecloth and have it well seasoned. With the chicken, ham and tongue make a good combination.

PAINT SHELVES

If you varnish or enamel the shelves or the inside of bureau drawers they look better and may be kept much cleaner than by the use of paper.

COTTON AND WOOL

The thrifty will not buy mixtures of cotton and wool. They do not wear alike and they shrink surprisingly.

SOUR MILK USES

Use sour milk with soda for gingerbread, biscuits and griddle cakes and you will have lighter results than when you used only sweet milk. If you are afraid of using too much soda, use with it a like measure of cream of tartar. Sour cream is very good in salad dressing.

SUGAR ECONOMY

In cooking rhubarb or cranberry sauce, boil until nearly done, add a pinch of soda and sweeten to taste. The soda neutralizes the acid and about half as much sugar will be enough. Too much sugar will make the rhubarb tasteless. Combine rhubarb with strawberries if you have some that seem not good enough to be served raw.

NAVY BLUE

Grays and tans have predominated this season for sport and tailored wear, but rumor has it that navy blue is on its way back and will be one of the leaders this fall.

MAYONNAISE

When your mayonnaise curdles you can bring it back to a state of smoothness by mixing a generous pinch of corn starch into a teaspoon of cold water and stirring this into the curdled dressing.

ANTI-FEMINISTS ARE ORGANIZING FORCES

THIS SCENE IS TYPICAL OF POLLING PLACES THROUGHOUT ATLANTA WHERE "ANTI-FEMINISTS" ARE REGISTERING TO PROTEST AGAINST THE WOMAN'S POLITICAL LEAGUE PLANS OF GAINING CONTROL OF CITY OFFICIES BY ELECTION OF A COMPLETE TICKET OF WOMEN

Atlanta, May 21.—Do women always vote for women?

An emphatic and negative answer is being made by fair sex voters in this city. And as a result of their determined effort to prevent a ticket composed entirely of women from gaining office—politically speaking, Atlanta is in a turmoil of excitement.

When the Women's Political League recently announced a complete ticket, from mayor on down, for the pending primaries, their sisters of the ballot drew back in amazement. Mass meetings were held and voters urged to register a petticoat protest.

"Antis" contended:

THAT it was all right for women occasionally to hold political office.

THAT an effort to gain complete control of a city government was going too far.

THAT good men should be chosen.

THAT the burden of political responsibility belongs on masculine shoulders.

THAT women have other and more useful spheres.

Undaunted by the sortie, members of the league still insist that Mrs. J. E. Gibbs will run for mayor and be backed with a complete ticket.

Mrs. Florence Moore and Miss Frances Russell, leaders of the "anti-feminist" group, voiced the opinion of hundreds, it is reported when they say the league is "going too far."

The chief point of debate between the two factions is the final contention of the "antis," to the effect that women have other and more useful spheres than politics.

Woman's place primarily is in the home and not in the city hall, the cry goes up. But league members feel that to really accomplish good in a municipal way, it is necessary to completely control the city government.

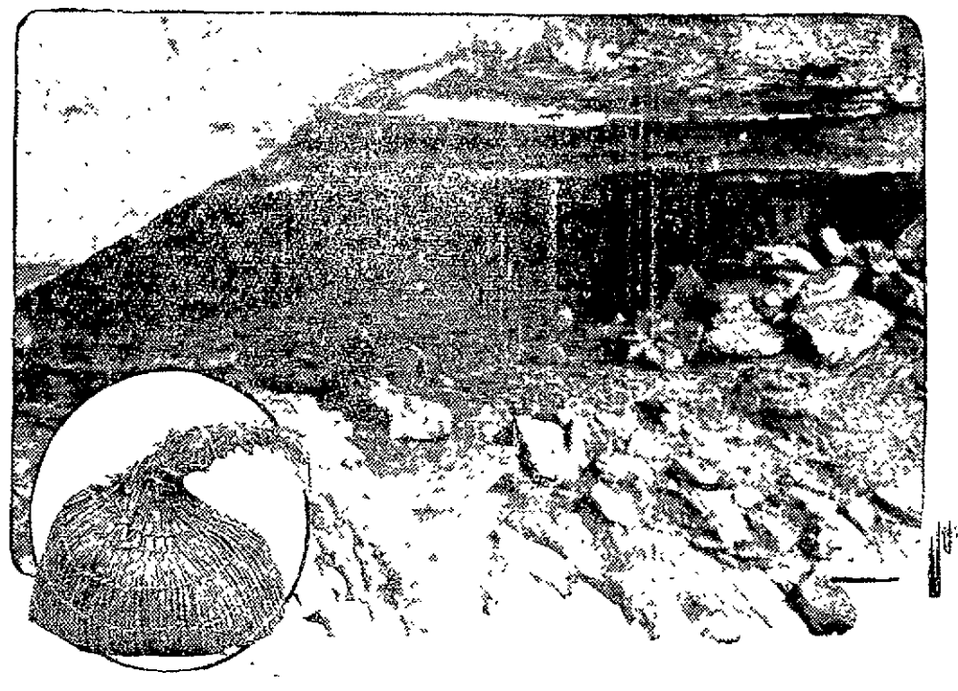
ANCIENT RELICS OF A VANISHED RACE FOUND IN OZARK MOUNTAINS



VIEW OF THE "MAIN STREET" OF A THOUSAND YEARS AGO. HERE OZARK BLUFF DWELLERS LIVED IN A SECLUDED PART OF ARKANSAS. INSET SHOWS A WOVEN GRASS BAG CONTAINING SEEDS. A BAG LIKE THOSE USED BY THIS STRANGE, VANISHED RACE

NEW YORK, May 23—The dryness of a certain Main Street back in the year 923 is responsible for one of the greatest archeological finds of recent years.

This Main Street is a series of overhanging bluffs ranging for five miles along the Wer River in the Northwestern part of Arkansas. Under these bluffs a primitive race of Indians built their camp fires and buried their dead.

This race now has vanished. But they have left things of priceless value to explorers—a halt shell hoe, a halt flint ax, a wooden throwing stick and a baby's carrying cradle made of cane.

Mysteries of Past

"The dryness of the bluffs is the only reason that these implements made of perishable material have been preserved to us," explains Donald Cadzow, one of three members of an expedition, now making explorations in the interests of the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, New York.

"Thousands of flint heads have been found before but never the wooden hafts into which these heads were fitted. Perforated clam shells have been discovered, but explorers were at loss to know for what purpose they were used."

His Daily Habits

Here are some of the things explorers discovered about the mysterious bluff dweller of 923:

He was of normal size.

He ate corn, squash and beans.

He hunted the buffalo for food and skins.

He kept dogs for pets.

He buried his dead, frequently in the dead man's own yard.

The exploring party now has moved further along the valley to discover the exact territory over which this vanished people ranged.

"MAKE AMERICA MUSICAL" FEDERATION SLOGAN

MRS. JOHN F. LYONS

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 22.—Every home a music center!

Every American a music lover!

Those will be the watchwords of the country's first "All-American" music convention to be held here June 9-17, with approximately 1400 delegates of the National Federation of Music Clubs in attendance.

American compositions will be used. American artists will perform.

And even an All-American symphony orchestra will play.

The convention will mark 25 years of earnest effort to create a distinctive art in this country.

When the federation started American music clubs were few. Now they numbered 1400, with more than a hundred thousand members.

"A Music Club for Every Town," has been the cry throughout these past years. And Mrs. John F. Lyons of Fort Worth, Texas, president, and other officials say there will be no slackening in the years to come.

"It is not always necessary to turn to foreign art for the most beautiful in music," Mrs. Lyons says. "Our country is young, which is probably responsible for the tendency to think of music and art in European terms. But no more will this be true.

"Our federation has constantly striven to encourage the young artist and to support American composers. And these two features of our work probably will be the outstanding points of interest at the coming convention."

SIX KILLED IN TRAIN COLLISION

Five Hoboes and Negro Porter Dead In Accident on Texas and Pacific Line Today

By Associated Press

ABILENE, Tex., May 24.—Five hoboes and a negro porter were killed and one engineer probably fatally injured when two Texas and Pacific passenger trains collided head on between Cisco and Putnam today.

CLAM AND RAT BATTLE IN CAPITAL CALLS OUT POLICE

WASHINGTON, May 24—A ringtailed rat and a carnivorous clam fought a terrific battle within the confines of the national capital early today and so clamorous was the combat that the police got called out to stop it.

It all happened in an oyster house. A passing pedestrian heard the squeaking of the rat and the deep bass male dictum of the clam within the closed and darkened restaurant. He telephoned the police that burglars were drilling a safe in the oyster house.

The police came on the double quick, but they found only the rat and the clam. The clam had a tail hold on the rat.

A policeman pried them apart, cautioned theme against further outbreaks and retired to the station house.

SALVATION ARMY HEAD SAYS WOMEN WASTE SHOES

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 24—Extravagance in footgear among women is more than a tradition, it's a fact, says the Salvation Army. A glance at the pile of shoes at the Salvation Army industrial home for men here will prove it, army officials say. Adjutant Arthur Fynn says that for every pair of men's shoes donated to the army, twenty-five feminine pairs are received.

"But slightly worn, of novelty cut and most of them small, women's shoes are a drag on our 'used clothing' market," he declares. "Many of them were too small for their first purchasers; that's why we get them.

"But we can't get enough men's shoes to go around. The men wear theirs out before we get a chance at them. So do the children. It's the women who keep us supplied."

SHELBURNE'S HAVE ATTRACTIVE COMMUNITY CHEST WINDOW

One of the most attractive ads for the Community Chest is to be found today in the Shelburne Drug Co. window. A cedar chest overflowing with bags of money forms the basis of the display. The bags are divided into nine piles for the various items in the Community Chest budget, the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Grace Nettleton Home, Girl and Boy Scouts, Red Bird Settlement School, the library, athletics, the tree fund and emergencies, each of which is appropriately marked.

VACATION SEASON HAS BEGUN CAMPING OUTFIT SALES SHOW

The vacation season has begun.

Warm weather which gives promise of becoming pernament sales of camping equipment and various vacation plans that we hear on all sides are eloquent evidence that the primitive longing to commune with Nature is becoming insistent. Shady streams, quiet sylvan nooks, yarns extolling the willingness of fish to bite at certain places, these subjects are becoming of greater interest than complicated international affairs.

Week end camping trips are beginning to occur with greater frequency. Local dealers say that tents, cots and kindred supplies are now in demand. Some fortunate ones there are who can take the entire summer for a camping trip but a week or two will be the limit of the average outing trip and many will not find it convenient to be away that long.

ESTILL COUNTY ORGANIZES TO WIPE OUT LIQUOR TRAFFIC

By Associated Press.

IRVINE, Ky., May 23—As a result of the continued lawlessness in this county, a law enforcement league for the purpose of aiding county and federal officers to wipe out the whiskey traffic has been organized in Estill county. Twenty-nine distilleries have been destroyed within the last few months.

A four flusher is a man who is shown up at a show down.

STATE GOLF TOURNEY TO BE HELD IN LOUISVILLE

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May23—The Kentucky State Golf tournament will be held on the links at the local country club here June 13-16, according to Alexander Heyburn, president of the State Organization.

The Southern tourney will be held in Birmingham June 19, therefore not conflicting with the two tournaments.

It is expected that a large number of local golfers, after having finished with the state competition here, will participate in the tournament in Birmingham and efforts will be made to bring the 1924 meeting to this city.

STATE TO BUILD NEW TYPE ROAD

Work Between Pineville and Corbin Progressing—Rights of Way Secured

Construction of about 1200 feet of Moore's invisible track road, a new type of roadway, which its inventor claims may be constructed at a saving of about $10,000 or $12,000 a mile, will be construced in Bell county just as soon as final specifications can be completed, Steve Watkins, division engineer of the State Highway department announced Wednesday. The work will be done by the highway department to make sure that the road is built according to specifications and close observation made on its wearing qualities and general effectiveness. The first test section will be constructed between the Wasiota and Clear Creek Bridge on the Middlesboro road, and at possibly another point yet to be selected where it will be subjected to hard use.

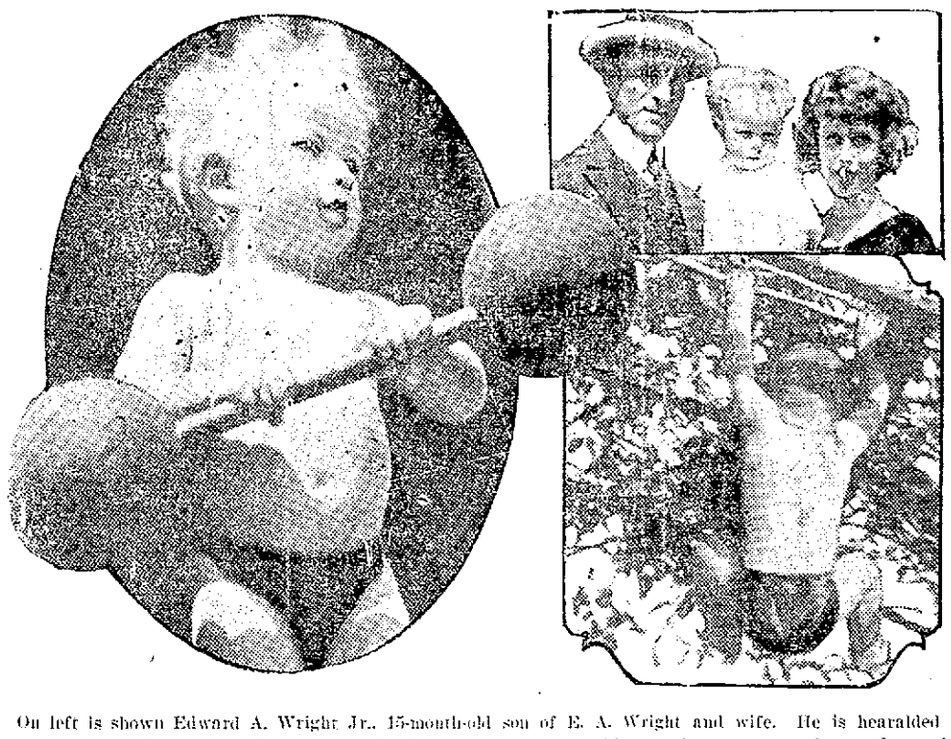
The new type of road as explained by Mr. Watkins, consists of two sets of re-inforced concrete beams, each about two feet wide and 8 inches thick at the thickest point, laid just the proper distance apart for wheels of motor vehicles to run over the center of the beams. One pair of beams will be placed on th eone side of the road to take care of traffic in one direction and the second set on the other side of the road to take care of the traffic in the other direction. Between the two beams the road may be constructed of a less expensive material, plain macadam, or macadam with a lighter dressing of asphalt or concrete. The concrete beams will be slightly concave so that the traffice will naturally follow the beams, with drainage outlets every 100 feet to take care of surface water. The concave contour will be so slight, however as not to interfere with driving off of the beams so that one car may pass another. The theory of the inventor of the new type of road is that the heavy reinforced concreate beams will take care of the traffic for many years without reconstruction, while the other sections of the road, outside the treads may be constructed at much less cost, the inventor claiming the new type of road to cost about $16,000 a mile, while a cost of from $28,000 to $30,000 for either concrete or asphalt road surfacing for the other styles.

Field plans for the reconstruction of Fitzpatrick and Cumberland avenues, Middlesboro, are complete. Mr. Watkins stated, and would be forwarded to the department headquarters at Frankfort immediately. He also announced that all the right of way difficulties for the new street through the Narrows have been cleared away and work would be continued there as fast as material can be delivered.

Construction work on the Pineville-Barbourville and Barbourville-Corbin jobs are progressing on schedule, Mr. Watkins announced, and barring accidents and excessive rainy weather will both be completed by November 1. The concrete surfacing job between Himyar and Barbourville is within five miles of Barbourville and Metzel O'Hearn, Vastine & Lewin, contractors expect to finish the first section complete into Barbourville by July 1 and move their equipment back to Flat Lick and work backwards from Himyar to Flat Lick, completing the last section by Novem ber 1, and then moving again to Magnet and completing the last section by November. In the meanwhile Mike Costello, grading contractor on the Barbourville-Corbin job is away ahead of his schedule which does not call for a completed job until July 1, 1924, and expects to be ready to turn the job over to the state by November 1.

All but about six pieces of property required for the right of way for the new road from Page to the Harlan county line have been obtained, Mr. Watkins stated.—Pineville Sun.

BABY "TARZAN" VIES WITH FOREST APES IN HIS CLIMBING FEATS



On left is shown Edward A. Wright Jr., 15-month-old son of E. A. Wright and wife. He is heralded as a physical marvel. At upper right the baby is photographed between his proud dad and mother. One of Edward's stunts is to climb the grape arbor, as shown in lower right.

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—Failure of parents to heed a child's natural promptings toward physical development is blamed by Mrs. Edward A. Wright for the extension of infantile weakness far into youth and maturity.

In "Tiny Tarzan," her 15-months-old prodigy son, Mrs. Wright has an incontrovertible "talking points," proving her contention by inverse.

Edward A. Wright Jr. has the agility of most children of four or five, and is credited with being the strongest baby of his age in the west, if nor in the United States.

His remarkable ability to climb and to do arboreal stunts dubbed him for the tree-dwelling hero of a famous author's tales.

"Edwin's father and I have simply encouraged instead of repressed his physical inclinations as they became apparent," explains his mother, who before marriage was Merle Maddison, talented musician.

He Likes to Climb

"It is in the use of the arms that most babies are restrained. Youngsters fairly ache to climb and to swing by their hands, strengthening the upper limbs, chest and back. But nurseries don't take this into account. Furniture, the stress on home orderliness and maternal 'don'ts' are such barriers for the instincts of babies. Did you ever try to visualize a house and its parental taboos from the viewpoint of a child?

"That's why we reared our boy almost wholly out of doors. At four months we observed a marked tendency to climb. Immediately we utilized this craving for constructive physical exercises. This brought not only gurgles of pleasure and the health of a developing mind in natural gratifications, but also enabled Edward at eight months to pass the 18-months-old test, and at a year the four-year standard.

Swam at Seven Months

"At seven months he could swim and walk on his hands. Weighing 26 pounds, he can lift a 35-pound dumbell. He negotiates the grape arbor, small trees and fences around the house better than boys three times his age. On the chinning bar and rings he's really quite dexterous.

"Tiny Tarzan's" Triumphs

Began climbing at four months and hanging without support.

Could chin bar at five months and walk on hands at eight months.

Swam and floated at seven months.

At eight months passed 18 months' intelligence test.

At 13 months passed four-year-old's standard of mentality.

At 15 months, weighing 26 pounds, lifts 35-pounds weights and scales grape vines, lattice work, fences and trees with agility of young ape, accomplishments for which he has been nicknamed "Tiny Tarzan."

"There's nothing remarkable about Edward's training. He sleeps 12 hours a night, is allowed nothing to eat between ample and carefully selected meals, and spends the entire day outdoors.

"Why do so many mothers frown upon the climbing instinct of their babies, during the years when the foundation of muscle, blood and bone is being laid for future stamina and health, an dthen lament the feebleness of youth denied its early heritage? How pathetic these proping denied expression by parents blind to the history of the human race!"
